IMPRINT

Cover photo: photographer Jan Grarup, seen through the lens of his 13 year-old daughter, Marikka

Turkish nationalists, Kurdish separatists, anti-capitalist Moslems – and women. The Taksim Square protests have united them all (page 30)

8 | Talking with

Hamburg printer Papu Pramod Mondhe about his meditative approach to his craft, his diplomatic skills and the meaning of paper prints in a digital age.

12 | Marked for life

Jan Grarup photographed his Danish compatriots on tour of duty in Afghanistan. Unwilling to forget their experiences there, many have recorded them permanently as tattoos.

30 | Angry, female, Turkish

Resistance to the felling of a few trees in Gezi Park evolved into the largest wave of protests in modern day Turkey – many women are at the front line.

42 | Dream beaches

Hyper-real imagery by Belgian sociologist and photographer Pascale Delfosse reveals the absurd side to recreational activities on the sand.

66 | Little left to lose

It is the poorest of the poor who are the hardest hit by the Greek crisis: female drug addicts sell their bodies for a few euros to finance their next fix.

80 | At close range

The legendary Robert Capa would have turned 100 years old this year. LFI looks back at his life, his iconic pictures and his influence on reportage photography.
